CLEVELAND SPIDERS TREAT THE SENATORS TO A SHUT OUT

Twirler Moore Wins His Game With Timely Single.

NEITHER SCORE UNTIL NINTH

Orth Shows He Is Still Able to Pitch the Game.

FASTEST WORK OF SEASON

Contest Over in 1 Hour and 22 Minutes—Full of Good Plays, in Which Lajoie, Bay, Gochauer, Doyle, Ryan, and Coughlin Were the Stars.

(Special to The Washington Times.)
CLEVELAND, Aug. 4.—After Earl Moore had pitched masterly ball for nine innings, not allowing a single Senator to even get near the home plate, he had the complete satisfaction of winning his own game in the last half of the ninth by making a hard infield hit, which Ely was a trifle slow in handling. Moore had no trouble in beating it out to first, while McCarthy raced home with the only run of the game, enough to win.

The way in which the Senators started to bat Moore in the first looked as though the poor crippled Cleveland were down for another beating. Ryan, the first man up, cracked the first ball pitched for a clean single, and stole second while Moore was trying to throw to the fence. Doyle hit a screamer down between third and short.

Stopped the Run.
Although Gochauer was playing close to second, he made a dive for the ball and stopped the sphere, holding Ryan at third and saving a run. Then Deleahanty sent a high foul back of third, which Bradley was just able to reach. Ryan made a start for home, but changed his mind. Doyle did not see this play, and started for second, where he was nearly caught on Bradley's fine throw to Lajoie, completing a double play. Then Kestler proceeded to strike out, and the only chance the Senators had during the game was gone.

After that but three hits were made off Moore, and not another man was able to reach third. But two men touched after the initial inning. But three faced Moore in each succeeding inning. Since the team returned home last Thursday Moore has pitched three games, two of them shut outs and the one on Saturday was lost by the score of 2 to 1.

While Washington was having trouble in finding Moore the Clevelanders were having their troubles with Al Orth. He had just as much confidence as Moore, and was pitching great ball. Cleveland lost a great chance to score in the opening inning.

Failed to Score.
Bay, the first man up, was called out on strikes. Bradley hit a screamer for a single toward center, and to show his appreciation took a big lead off first to try out Bill Clarke's arm. This proved fatal, as Orth caught him napping according to Umpire O'Loughlin. Then Lajoie made a clean double, which would have easily scored Bradley. As it was Lajoie was left, and no runs were scored.

After that not another hit was made off Orth until the seventh inning, when McCarthy hit with terrific force at Doyle. It was too warm to hold.
Orth then began to weaken in the eighth. Moore, the first man up, hit one that just touched Orth's fingers, and the pitcher reached first. Bay beat out his attempted sacrifice. Moore going to third when Deleahanty allowed Coughlin's throw to get away from him. Bradley hit to Ely and Moore was run down between the bases. Lajoie hit one to the shortstop, who doubled up Bradley at second. Lajoie stole second while Bay was at third. Hickman then proceeded to strike out.

With the heavy hitters out of the way the Senators as well as the crowd were looking for an extra inning game. Flick, the first man up, gave Doyle a chance to try his throwing arm. Then McCarthy gave Ely a hard one, which he was just able to reach, but could not hold. Ryan made a great catch of Gochauer's line. With two gone it looked bad for the Spiders, but Wood came to the rescue by hitting one cleanly to right center, sending McCarthy to third.

Ely Fell Down.
After two strikes were on Moore he hit one to the infield, which rolled slowly to Ely. The latter tried to get the ball in time to throw Moore out at first, but Moore beat the throw, and the game had been won. As McCarthy crossed the plate with the winning run, it was a close shave, and the score itself will tell what kind of a stiff argument the Senators put up.

The game was full of good plays in which Bradley, Gochauer, Lajoie and Bay carried off the honors for Cleveland with Ryan, Coughlin and Doyle for the Senators.

GOSSIP OF THE GAME.

Muggsy McGraw was interviewed recently in New York, and in answer to the question, "Does baseball offer an inviting field for the young man?" he said:

"No, no! It's too long. The chances are those of the Louisiana Lottery. It takes on an average five years to play up to the minor leagues, and five more to get a uniform of the big ones. I might go right out now and sign twelve of the best players in minor leagues or colleges and I would get about one player fit to go on our nine."

"You don't go much on college-bred men as players?"
"No. They have too much money behind them, and they start too late. A crack player generally comes off the lot. He starts as a small boy and gets all his muscles trained for anything. He hasn't anything back of him to speak of, and he plays for all there is in it. At sixteen or seventeen, you will find him a pretty shifty kind of player. He starts with his team and takes lots of hard knocks and reverses while he is getting to the top, but when he goes get there he is thoroughly seasoned and ought to be good for ten years, at least, if he takes care of himself."

"Does baseball playing professionally affect a man's after life and habits?"
"It depends on the man," replied Captain McGraw. "In that respect it is just the same as anything else. Some fellows won't be bothered for anything but sport, and they hang around it even after they have outlived their usefulness. Others launch out in business and do well. They are healthy, as a rule, and of good habits; that helps a lot. If a man's choice is to reach, he will hustle at something, if he is naturally a loafer, whether he plays baseball or not, it would hardly affect him in after life."

"The ideal player? Oh, well, that means a lot, I suppose. Lajoie comes nearer it than any player we have today. It's so hard to get a good all-around man. If a player excels in one respect, he falls in another. When one speaks of that, he gets away up in the clouds. We don't see one in our decade."

There was a great time in Chicago at the window of the Ortolos' series Saturday. There was a big crowd, a band, and the crowd was cheering for the "Patriots." The inscriptions were emblazoned on mounds of signs of huge proportions and were neatly lettered. They read as follows:

Kelley and McGraw,
Have! Have! Have!
What? Go, you say?
God bless the day!

"We don't want any more traitors in the American, only League."

We greet you, loyal Ortolos,
You're a credit to the land;
You're coming like a race horse,
And playing to beat the band.
All hail to the loyal Ortolos,
Who to their League stand true,
Undaunted and unswerving,
They're surely coming through.

"The American is the only League, and we, the people, don't want any more Kelley and McGraws."

Mr. Harry Mace, of this city, who was an umpire in the North Carolina State League until it disbanded a few weeks ago, has received an appointment as umpire in the New York State League, and will leave today for Schenectady, N. Y., where he will officiate in the game tomorrow. The Washington friends of Mr. Mace will be pleased to learn that he has the promise of an appointment as one of the umpires in the American League from President Ban Johnson, when a vacancy occurs.

"We'll have pitchers to burn in a few days, perhaps in a few hours," said

Manager Robinson, of Baltimore, at St. Louis yesterday. "Robbie" means that Kestler has accepted the terms of the Baltimore Club, has been given transportation and has promised to report at Detroit tomorrow. "Rike" Butler is due to arrive today, and there is a twirler named Goker, reputed to be the best pitcher in the New Hampshire League, for whom the Baltimoreans are angling.

President Ebbets and Manager Hanlon, when questioned the other day on the alleged agreement to waive the reserve rule, decided that the Brooklyn club had entered into such an arrangement.

"The Brooklyn club never gave up its claim on any of the players who jumped their contracts," said President Ebbets. "We still maintain our rights in this respect, and we are protected by the reserve rule came up at an internal talk at the National League meeting, not at a stated session, and it was never put to a vote."

"We were asked to give an opinion on the subject, but Mr. Hanlon and myself refused. On the ground that Messrs. Van der Horst and Abell were absent, and we could not speak for them. Personally, I said I was opposed to it."

"We have documents to show that we claimed our players and Mr. Brush acknowledged this claim as late as April 2 last, when he telegraphed me asking me for a list of the players who he deserted our club. I have the telegram here now. Here it is."

Ebbets showed the reporter a telegram which reads as follows:

"April 2, 1902.
"Kindly mail me to Indianapolis list of players claimed by Brooklyn that have deserted."

JOHN T. BRUSH.
"That is evidence enough that we did not relinquish our claim on our players," said Ebbets.

"We're not through with this," said Hanlon. "They can't play Brooklyn for a good thing all the time."

MARINES NOT IN FORM AND EASILY DEFEATED

Postoffice Team Wins Its Farewell Game in Departmental League—Score, 10 to 8.

The postoffice baseball team played its farewell game in the Departmental League with the Marines yesterday. The marines won the game, but owing to the fact that only one player on the team was an employee of the postoffice, the game was protested before it was begun, and consequently will not count against the Marines.

After a hard fight the marines finally won out by a score of 10 to 8.

STRAINED SITUATION AT CRAVEN INVESTIGATION

of witnesses to positively identify any of the persons who participated in the mob violence is explained by those who gave the testimony. When the negro was brought from the jail all eyes were on him, and so it was when he was hung to the tree, and the personnel of the mob was obliterated. At all times the excitement was such that there were only a few calm and collected enough to realize thoroughly everything being done. The lynchers made no attempt to disguise themselves, but so many were making threats against the negro at the same time that it was difficult to say who was or was not active in the work of dealing out summary punishment.

While the lynching is generally condemned, there is an effort to be made to bring to justice those responsible for it. There is no doubt that the sentiment of the people is with those who were so unfortunate as to be recognized in the past they played. Following the verdict of the coroner's jury, warrants will be sworn out for those named in the verdict, and arrests will follow as quickly as possible. Next Monday the grand jury will meet, and it is more than likely that those held by the coroner's jury will be indicted.

Citizens Realize Investigation.

There are citizens, and prominent ones too, who assert that the proceedings have already been carried too far and who assert that there shall be no legal proceedings. Coroner Clappert is probing into the matter and Commonwealth Attorney E. D. Garrett is performing the duties of his office without fear or favor. Governor Montague is personally interested in the investigation, and has been in communication with the county authorities every day since the negro was captured and lynched. He is anxious to put a stop to mob violence, even though it be necessary to order the State National Guard to enforce the law. There is a duty to be done here, however, when attempt is made to arrest citizens charged with being implicated in the hanging. Residents of that section of the county where Mr. Wilson resided, including those of both Fairfax and Loudoun counties, have given out that persons who participated in the lynching of the supposed murderer shall not be molested. Should they be taken into custody, it is hinted, a full delivery will be attempted. It is said that the crowd
